
THE MIKE WYE NEWSLETTER

Our Sustainable Design Centre hosts its inaugural event!

Although the work is not quite complete we just couldn't wait to try out our new Sustainable Design Centre.

The Devonshire Association were the first lucky people to be welcomed through the doors to attend an educational seminar on the history and maintenance of cob buildings in Devon.

The super insulated structure provided a comfortable environment on a hot day, and with the Secil render systems, Silicate paints, Kreidezeit Stand Oil Paints and Wood Lazures it was also a healthy one!

Watch out for our new website!

We are slaving away on our updated website as you read this. Yes, I know, it only seems a moment since we updated it last time, but hey, this is the digital age and you can't rest on your laurels. You don't need to do anything but keep going to www.mikewye.co.uk (as you do anyway) and suddenly, before long, the new website will be there.

Summer hints and tips

Summer is finally here and the outdoor work begins. Long hot days (hopefully) make any outside jobs more appealing but remember to protect your lime work. For best results, work on shaded elevations, control the drying by dampening with water, and protect with hessian. A steady and controlled drying time will significantly improve the quality of the final set.

Launch of new GEOCELL technical brochure

The new GEOCELL Foamed Glass brochure is now available on our website. It includes specifications, example costs and U-Values, including those for our LABC registered Glasscrete floor system.
